

2006 Golandsky Institute Summer Symposium and International Piano Festival.(Items of Interest)

American Music Teacher; 6/1/2006

The 2006 Golandsky Institute Summer Symposium will take place July 15-23, at Princeton University in Princeton, New Jersey. Each evening throughout the week of the Symposium, the Golandsky Institute will present its 2006 Golandsky International Piano Festival.

At the event, participants will attend lectures, master classes, technique clinics and other presentations by Edna Golandsky and the Institute's expert faculty, who have undergone years of training to qualify as teachers of the Taubman Approach. In addition, each participant will have private lessons and interactive technique clinics.

Each year, the Golandsky Institute invites composers, writers, educators and others to participate in the Symposium. Presenters at this year's event include, Edward Bilous, Yehudi Wyner, Sandra Rosenblum, Thomas Bagwell, William Noll, Anthony Flinn, Kendall Feeney, John Bloomfield, Marc Steiner and Robert Durso.
